CCC (the center for creative communications) will present a collaborative exhibit by Nagoya artist Seijiro Niwa and photographer Takao Aoki which will be held at CCC and at Mixed Media. Along the theme of the line between the limits of art and people's field of vision, Niwa has been creating works which are models of his ideal pictorial art. For this exhibit "aftermath & new works", numerous photographic works by Niwa from 1997 to 2005 have been reassembled with a current viewpoint as well as new works photographed at CCC.

Word from the Artist

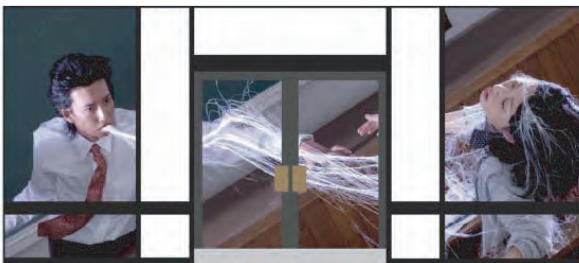

I have worked with a fascination of "pictorial art". But I am most interested in the edge of pictorial art. I hope to fully bring forth into the artwork the world that I look upon. If pictorial art is the representation of human perception, then by taking away the frames of artwork one is also doing the same with the borders of human perception. Its the perspective edge where only the limits of clear artwork and that of regular vagueness can be recognized. It is with these two points which can never overlap that my models of "ideal pictorial art" are produced.
